Halebi is an Egyptian name for Romani. They reside in the Nile Delta. Traditionally, the men bought and sold horses and the women practiced folk medicine, fortune-telling and divination. They also performed music for weddings. Today, the Halebi Romani have low status and low income jobs, and some try to disguise their identity.

Ministry Obstacles

The Halebi Romani are Muslims who gather for corporate prayer on Friday afternoons. Believing that Allah has pre-determined their fates, they minimize free will. They are not open to allowing Jesus to be lord of their lives.

Outreach Ideas

Who will share with them about their identity and hope in Jesus Christ? They can find new identities as the children of the most high God.
