

Japanese in South Korea

The Japanese are one of the most homogeneous people groups in the world. For this reason, it is difficult for Japanese people who live outside of their country in places like South Korea. From 1910-45, Japan held Korea as it's colony, and there are still many Koreans who hold this against the Japanese. Most Japanese in South Korea are working in the realm of business. With South Korean businesses emerging, this is one more area where there is potential hostility and rivalry between Koreans and Japanese.

Ministry Obstacles

Many Japanese are indifferent and skeptical of established religion. On the outside, they seem to have few needs. However, many of them have become obsessed with materialistic pleasures, careers and possessions.

Outreach Ideas

South Korea has a strong, mission-minded church. Korean believers can go to the Japanese with the life-changing gospel. They will need to present the gospel using forms that the Japanese can understand.
