

Runga in Central African Republic

The Runga are an agrarian Central African Republic people group. They have a male/female division of labor. They live in small rural towns, although some live in cities. They are a polygamous people, with up to four wives to a household. However, the primary wife lives with the husband while secondary wives live in their own separate dwellings. Many practice folk Islam, ie, animism with a veneer of Sunni Islam. The remainder are Sunni Muslims. They also engage in Sufism, a mystic form of Islam.

Ministry Obstacles

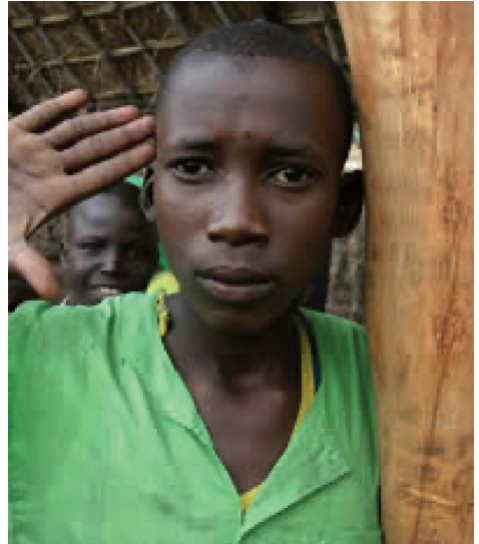

Not much is known about the Rungas, so it is difficult to develop outreach strategy. No Christian resources are available in their language.

Outreach Ideas

They need cross-cultural evangelists and agricultural scientists, Christian radio broadcasts, and literature in their language.

Prayer Focus

Pray for the development of engaging Christian radio broadcasts
