

Arghun in Pakistan

The Argon (or Arghun) derive their name from the Persian term arghwani, meaning beautiful red color. They belong to the Hanafi school of Sunni Islam and believe that God spoke through the prophet, Mohammed. They look to the Koran for instructions on how to live a righteous life.

Ministry Obstacles

As Sunnis, the Argon believe that God has predestined their fate. Because Allah is considered distant and unapproachable, they also believe in the spirits and seek to appease them. They have no concept of a sin-forgiving savior.

Outreach Ideas

Prayer, internet ministry, and the witness of Pakistani Christian believers may be effective in reaching this Muslim group.
