

Lashari Baloch in Pakistan

The Lashari Baloch people are probably not known to most readers, but God knows them and wants them to be represented at His throne in Heaven! They live in the southernmost region of the Iranian plateau, and they are mostly a tribal people, following tribal customs. They are predominantly Sunni Muslims, although some are Shia. The Baloch tradition of mothers singing lullabies to their children has played an important role in the transfer of knowledge from generation to generation.

Ministry Obstacles

The Baloch live according to customs and traditions which are conducted according to codes imposed by tribal laws. Since they are a tribal people, and their identity as such is so important, changing to a completely different faith will take a great deal of prayer and moving of the Holy Spirit to make this a reality.

Outreach Ideas

As readers of this article, consider adopting the Baloch people and pray for them daily to be open to the gospel message. Pay for the Holy Spirit to call missionaries to go to the Lashari Baloch people in Pakistan.
