

Jat Aulak in India

The Jat Aulak are known for being valiant soldiers throughout Indian history. They served with the British and sometimes fought against them. Rural Jat are often landowners. Laborers from lower castes often work for Jat landlords. Urban Jat are politicians, businessmen, bankers, attorneys and professors. There are few if any believers among the Sikh Jat Aulak.

Ministry Obstacles:

The region where the Jat Aulak live in northern India in recent years has seen violence and turmoil. The Sikhs tend to be successful people who take pride in their unique religion and their high place in Indian society. Sikhs tend to be devoted to their religion, so if one looks elsewhere for spiritual answers, he or she will face persecution.

Outreach Ideas:

Radio programs are available in Western Punjabi, the main language of the Jat Aulak. Indian believers can build friendships with the Jat Aulak and tell them about the savior of the world.

Prayer Focus
